Racism is a pandemic

Over 10,000 residents of Brighton UK trooped out in a Black Lives Matter protest march in response to the death of George Floyd, a Black-American man who died by asphyxiation in the custody of policemen in Minneapolis. His death sparked a chain of protests across the world in spite of social distancing rules required to curb the spread of the Coronavirus pandemic, which has infected 11.2 million people and killed about 600,000 worldwide.

The protesters, most of who wore nose masks, chanted "No justice! No peace!", "Say his name! George Floyd!" and carried placards with inscriptions like "More scared of a racist world than a pandemic" and "The UK is not innocent".
